Here's what's been happening on the Ipswich business scene.

Trisco Foods wins Premier's Prize

Local family-owned business Trisco Foods has taken out a major award this year when they were presented with the Premier of Queensland's Exporter of the Year 2019. The food manufacturing business that is owned by the Tristam family from Carole Park, has been operating for over one hundred and forty years. The factory makes syrups and flours that are used here and overseas. The family has crowned it's achievement by announcing they have opened a new factory in the U.S.

Ballistic Beer Co. Brewery, Springfield

David Kitchen, founder of the Ballistic Brewing Company has opened a new branch of the brewery in the space formerly occupied by the Springfield Central Tavern

David says he chose the area as it was more than ready for a community minded and authentic hospitality option. The space includes tables for large groups, green space and playground for children. It will offer a full kitchen service with a menu including beer-brined chicken wings, Ballistic beer-infused sausage balls steamed dumplings, petite tender steaks, Ballistic beer-battered cod, pizzas and burgers, as well as a new beer concoction- the Springfield Pilsner. All beer on tap will be brewed on site in the 800 litre brewing equipment.

Eadies Mechanical installs MultiSERVE

One of the longest running automotive workshops in Ipswich, Eadies Mechanical now has an exciting new addition to their workshop, to further improve the service and efficiency for their customers.

Eadies is the first automotive business in Ipswich to own a MultiSERVE machine, which allows them to clean DPFs (diesel particulate filters), intakes and injectors in a vehicle all on the same day, and on-location.

The MultiSERVE machine joins a wide variety of automotive services, including the ability to work on heavy vehicles, light vehicles, motorhomes, caravans, trailers, boiler making, gearboxes and wheel alignment - and all at the hands of dual-qualified tradesmen.

Eadies is an authorised Queensland Transport Safety Inspection Station and services and repairs automotive air conditioning (Refrigerant Handlers Licence ARC AU01320).

Eadies use quality Australian Owned Penrite Oils in all vehicles and quality OEM approved parts for log book servicing and can stamp your logbooks to maintain new car warranties.

As a family run business that has been operating in Ipswich since 1971, Eadies has provided its customers in the Ipswich region with high quality service at reasonable prices.

Call 07 5464 3413 to book in for your next service at Eadies, located on Southern Amberley Road near RAAF Base Amberley.
